Vol. 2.

No. 5.

March 2, 1920.

Mr. Frants P. Lund, our Home Demonstrator of American Cooperative methods in France, on his return to this Office contributes the following:

"In time of peace and plenty as well as in time of war the condition in the homes of a nation is the barometer indicating in advance what will befall the nation. When Rome stood on the height of its power and glory the home life commenced to show corruption, the barometer fell and pointed towards storm, and storm came, so intense that the Roman Empire broke down and was destroyed.

The danger of corruption in the homes is not so great, as long as the nation is working to change the wilderness into farm land and to develop the natural resources. The danger becomes greater when the nation has won over the natural obstacles and can commence to live a life of ease.

Rural cooperation and community activities are excellent and indispensable aids for a nation in reaching its full development, but in themselves they can only be of lasting value if they originate in and start from the farm home as a result of the needs felt there. They can not be created from above and accomplish what they are intended for, but must be the logical development resulting from and growing out of the home activities.

To develop that home to the fullest possible extent, to make that the crowning triumph of American civilization, so the home barometer continually will indicate beautiful weather, is the object of the Home Demonstration Work. That this work in some measure is succeeding is not only proved by the homes becoming more efficient and more attractive under the guidance of the Home Demonstration Agents, but also by the interest this work has created in other countries and the constantly increasing demand for information and instruction along this line."

COUNTY AND HOME DEMONSTRATION AGENTS MEETINGS ETC.
COLLEGE SHORT COURSES AND FAIRS BY STATES.

Hon. Edwin T. Meredith, our new Secretary of Agriculture, requests the farmers to give hearty cooperation in securing a full and accurate census of the farms when he states: "If one farm is missed in the Census enumeration the returns will be incomplete. It is the public duty, as well as to the individual benefit of every farmer to have his farm represented in the Census."

The Secretary of the American Farm Bureau Federation announces that nineteen states have ratified the constitution of the National Organization, and directors and members of the executive committee will hold a meeting in Chicago, at La Salle Hotel on March 3. Mr. Gray Silver of Martinsburg, W. Va., will be the Washington representative of the American Federation of Farm Bureaus.

A conference held on February 11 between the Shipping Board and representatives of principal nitrate concerns reached the agreement that the board would furnish requisite tonnage covering the period from now until July 1. Delays may occur for a few weeks in the deliveries but will be righted in time.

Nearly 50 per cent of the men under Vocational training in the sixth district, which comprises the states of Alabama, Mississippi and Louisiana, are taking courses at some Agricultural Colleges.

The American Cotton Association recommends the installing of proper means in the departments for teaching the business side of cotton production, and two of the Southern universities are making plans to follow this advice.

According to the Dairy Division at Washington, Bull Associations are fast coming to the front and improving the livestock industry.

"Purebred cows in Bull association herds have increased 249 per cent since 1918 according to the bull association directory compiled by the United States Department of Agriculture." By comparison of the associations reported there is an increase of 118 per cent in 1919 over 1918.

On January 1, the "Better Sires" Drive reported that of the forty states enrolled thirteen of the number were from the southern territory.

It is shown by Professor E. L. Jordan on his return from Montgomery that "the Southern Cattlemen's Association is tending towards becoming a powerful factor in the development of the cattle industry in the South." John Cockerham of Luella, Louisiana, was elected president of the association.

The National Grange Office in Washington with Dr. F. C. Atkeson as Legislative representative, has outlined some points for a national farmers' policy which have been presented to the President. The Washington headquarters are still retained for 1920.

The Southern States International Stock Show will probably be held in the fall at Memphis, Tennessee.

The County Holstein-Friesian Breeders' Association elected the following officers for the coming year: President, George W. Everson; Vice-president, N. V. Lasher; Secretary and Treasurer, Frank J. Walrath; ten directors were elected from each township and three to serve on the Executive Committee. Director W. M. Rider of the Extension Service of the Holstein-Friesian Association of America advises bi-monthly meetings for active promotion.

Miss Ola Powell, in charge of the Home Demonstration Work, and her three assistants, Miss Reese, Miss Wessling and Miss Keown, held promptly at noon on February 19, a most attractive luncheon in the Office of Extension Work in the South. This delightful demonstration of the arts in which these ladies excel was given in honor not only of our new Chief, Mr. J. A. Evans, and our Assistant Chief, Mr. Wm. B. Mercier, but also for the purpose of voicing the gratitude felt by these ladies for the

The 8th Annual Convention of the U. S. Good Roads Association as well as the U. S. Good Roads Show will be held at Hot Springs on April 12 to 17. The Department of Agriculture and the War Department will have an exhibit at this time.

County agent, C. A. Overstreet, of southwest Arkansas says "Cooperative shipments are doing more to get better hogs on the farms of Columbia county than anything that has ever been done. When a farmer brings in his razorbacks and places them beside the high grade and purebred hogs he soon decides that the next time he ships he will have animals of which he will not be ashamed."

The Cleburne county agent, Mr. Kennedy, has received 60 reports from 76 members of the County Council of Agriculture with reference to the 1920 seed supply. This shows the cooperative spirit between the farmers of the county and the agent. The Board will distribute the information over their individual communities.
